Geometry 02 may be offered in the extended day program.

Hawks Plan Busy Week at Pasadena

By Jeff Howard

DECEMBER 15th is drawing closer and the Hawks are ready and waiting to tangle with the fast, tough Santa Ana Dons.

The Hawks have been working extra hard for their final battle and are in "good" condition, according to Coach Pool.

"Practice has been excellent so far, and we're hoping the weather holds out the rest of this week," he said.

The Hawks will leave for Pendleton by bus December 11 at 8 a.m. From Pendleton, they will fly to Pasadena arriving there at 12:30 p.m. They will be staying at the Huntington Hotel.

MOST OF their time will be devoted to practicing, and they will not have too much time for entertainment — although they do have a movie scheduled for Wednesday and a dinner in honor of the team planned Friday, December 14.

"We're not going down for a joy ride. We're going down to attempt to win the ball game, which means there will not be time for sight-seeing," said Pool.

"This is the feeling of the team as well as the coaches."

Library Requests Payment of Fines

MOST STUDENTS are aware of the fact that, unless all library fines are paid and lost books taken care of, an appointment for registration cannot be made.

However, a factor that many students do not realize is that while registration continues through the holidays, the library will not be open during this period.

Therefore, since no more registration appointments will be made until December 14, all fines should be dispensed with before this date to insure no further delay in registration.

Since the library is not always open (hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday; re-opened from 6:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday; closed on Saturdays), a Book Drop has been built to take care of those books trying to be returned when the library is closed.

The Book Drop is located directly outside the library in the first window from the main entrance. The library hopes this will eliminate overdue books due to the library being closed.

However, if the book is overdue when returned in the Book Drop, the fine shall be recorded and checked off as soon as the student takes care of it.

Tuesday and Wednesday, the team will have double practices at Pasadena City College.

They will leave Pasadena December 16 at 10 a.m. and will arrive home via Pendleton at 3:30 p.m.

Coach Pool and the team hope that there are as many people as possible at the game to give the team support. They will be out-numbered as it is and they need everyone's help.

New Classes Set For Night School

SEVERAL NEW courses will be offered in the extended day program during winter quarter.

Introduction to Astronomy 101 will be offered at CBC on Tuesday nights from 7 to 10 p.m. Mr. Schlosser, the astronomy instructor, stated "the object of this course is to give students a basic understanding of astronomy and the astronomical phenomena of daily life."

"Besides covering the basic fact and theories of astronomy, this course will also cover the methods of observation from which these facts and theories have been determined." Another science course added to the extended day program is Physics, which is an introduction to modern physics.

In the English department English 240, creative writing will be offered Tuesday nights from 7 to 10 p.m. and will be taught by Mr. James Fredlund. Purpose of this class is to develop a talent in writing short stories, plays, novels, or poems. Writing for publication will be encouraged.

Other new English classes for night school include: English 121, introduction to classic literature; English 50, fundamentals; English 80, reading for comprehension; English 90, spelling and vocabulary and Speech 146, television techniques and a lab at KEPR TV.

IN THE humanities department Philosophy 177, examination and study of four philosophies, is offered on Wednesday 7 to 10 p.m. and is taught by Mr. Jack Orchard. The course will give a general overview of philosophy including a brief history, general discussion of philosophy along with terms peculiar to philosophy.

A pre-requisite in Philosophy 101 is desired. Other humanity courses being offered are History 104, U. S. History to 1864, and Sociology 150, marriage relations.

A new class in the math department is Math 221, differential equations. This class will be held Thursdays between 7 and 10 p.m., and will be taught by Mr. Truman Tucker. Other math classes to be offered are B.A. 256, Statistics, and Math 01, refresher algebra.

Campus Impressions

By Linda Brutzman

"THESE ARE THE TIMES that try men's souls." This familiar and often-quoted phrase from the writings of Thomas Paine so aptly fits the quarter's end.

It's nearly final exam time, and I'm sure that to date not one CBC student has cracked a book or glanced at his notes in preparation for finals. Don't worry, this is nothing unusual; in fact, it's par for the course.

I'll bet you freshmen didn't realize you could let yourselves get so far behind, did you? Well, take it from a sophomore, next quarter will end up the same way, no matter how good your intentions. I've come to the conclusion it's all part of college life.

Finals last for only one short week, a week of cramming and complaining and self-recrimination. My advice is to think about the three weeks of vacation; after all, you have to occupy your mind with something besides books and studies.

On December 14, the halls of CBC will ring with another often-quoted phrase—TGIF.

LIKE MOST of the other students, I was somewhat disappointed that there would be no school-sponsored transportation to the Junior Rose Bowl in Pasadena. Looking into the situation a little farther, I found that there are still several seats available on the plane at $75 a seat. Though reasonable, the fare is too steep for most college students, especially since the trip involves only one day. Several students are being sent by the ASB, band, and other campus organizations. These are the lucky ones, and it is too bad there couldn't be more of them. Incidentally, the ASB will furnish JRB game tickets for all students who make it to Pasadena. As a consolation to the kids at home, radio KALE will broadcast the game live and direct from Pasadena Saturday afternoon at 1:00.

IF YOU ARE GUILTY of stamping out cigarettes on the lounge floor, this may interest you. Each cigarette put out in this manner burns a hole in the wax and damages the floor surface causing a lot of extra work for the maintenance crew. If you must throw that cigarette on the floor, put it out first.

MR. SIG HANSEN voiced his opinion on that controversial subject, card playing in the student lounge, the other day. Since this is one of the few schools where card playing is allowed, even in the afternoon, students should not abuse the privilege. In the morning tables are needed by students who wish to study or eat. After noon, students can play cards if they wish while waiting for rides or killing time. It's a matter of common courtesy.

THIS IS THE LAST ISSUE of the Collegiate for the current quarter, and I would like to take this opportunity to thank the kids on the staff for their hours of work and much-needed support through some pretty trying times. Anyone wishing to report for the paper next quarter is invited to contact the adviser, Miss Lowry, or myself.

Merry Christmas! See you next year, refreshed and ready for the next go-round?

What Determines Excellence

By Mr. Donald T. Rippey
President of CBC

HELLO, THERE — Pardon the interruption, but I'm new around here and I couldn't help overhearing your conversation. Since my arrival at Columbia Basin College one of the major topics of conversation has been the excellence of the Hawk football team.

Of course, much of this talk was speculation concerning a bid to the Junior Rose Bowl. However, I find students and faculty alike often raising other fundamental questions.

The conversation seems to divide into two schools of thought; one view holds that the excellence of a school is determined, in general, by the number of games its football team wins and the capstone of proof being an invitation to play in a post-season bowl.

The other school of thought views an excellent football team as proof that all other phases of the college program must be inferior and neglected.

THE ASSUMPTIONS underlying both views are interesting. Let's take a look at them.

The "excellent team equals excellent school" view makes the assumption that colleges playing in bowl games are America's finest colleges. This, at least, is the logical extension of philosophy that excellence in one division of a college is tantamount to excellence in another.

If this is really fact, its opposite should also be true and such schools as Harvard, MIT, Cal. Tech., and others, with high academic ratings should be playing in the bowl games. Certainly it is just as logical to assume that the football team is excellent because the mathematics is excellent and vice versa.

In all fairness, I think we must reject this view because from both logic and personal acquaintance, we must recognize that it is possible to have one activity or division of a college superior to another, thus an excellent football team is no assurance of an excellent academic program.

NOW, IN TURN, what are the assumptions inherent in the "excellent team equals inferior academic program" view?

Here the major assumption is that a college willing to support, promote, and maintain a winning football team either can't, or won't, provide the same ingredients for a strong academic program. Once again the opposite proves the assumption false.

By this reasoning, Wisconsin and USC, this year's teams in the Senior Rose Bowl, would have weak academic programs due to their over-emphasis on athletics. Even the most violent foes of big-time football would not deny that both Wisconsin and USC have fine reputations in most academic areas.

So, to briefly summarize both points of view, one just can't find evidence to support a cause and effect relationship between excellence in one college division and excellence in another, even though one be inter-scholastic athletics.

IF I MAY interject a personal opinion at this point, I would venture a guess that more examples could be found indicating that when a college does exhibit excellence in one division it will tend to exhibit excellence in other divisions, provided they are supported and promoted to an equal extent.

"What?" "Oh, what does all this have to do with CBC?"

I answer you thusly:

1. The excellence of the Hawk football team is highly commendable and they are to be congratulated!

2. This excellence is proof of:

a. Desire, hard work, ability, long hours of practice and study on the part of the team members.

b. Skill, background, long hours of overtime work, and excellent teaching ability on the part of the coaching staff.

c. Financial and administrative support on the part of the local board of directors, colleges and ASB.

Quite true, factors that spell any division, be arts, vocational athletics.

NOW A FINAL I'll leave you to discussions.

I pledge the divisions to attain not by tearing other division's by building others. This through comparison, support, recruit quality faculty solid backing programs and academic freedom classroom.

The rest is up to you and students

EACH COMING YEAR new students enter the halls and classrooms of CBC. These students are from different walks of life. There are those of different race and country partaking of the individual freedom expressed within these halls. There are the athletes anxiously awaiting to share the glory of belonging to a top-notch organization. There are the scholars who are absorbing the fruits of knowledge and applying it to their future.

Of course, like in genetics, there are those who attain some or all of these qualities. Then there are about 50 per cent of the students who must "put their nose to the grind stone" to attain a good grade, and there are those who do not apply themselves and drift away only to be blown around like a tumbleweed.

Students think little enough of the advantages of CBC.
This great organization offers guidance to its students during the school year and throughout the students academic program.

Another outstanding feature of CBC is that it allows freshmen and sophomores to be leaders instead of followers, opening the doors for future success.

Everything from Russian to welding is taught at CBC.
Never let it be said "there are not enough classes to choose from."

Finally and most important are the qualified teachers and staff. They are only interested in sharing their knowledge and leadership with the student. They are not only interested in the students' scholarly life but with his many problems.

It can be said truthfully that CBC opens a door of new horizons climaxed with the fruits of life.

SHORT STUFF

By Sam Martinez

IT LOOKS LIKE basketball coach, Jim Rodgers, is going to have to depend upon his reserves to play the first few games for him.

Mike McKeown, ace cager from Columbia High School in Richland and a transfer from Montana State; Tom Ballantyne, an Idaho All-Stater and a University of Idaho transfer; Jim Bedford, a transfer from Central Washington State College, Lendel Capps and Ron Hiskey will not be eligible until the fifth game because of transcript transferring difficulties.

This will be quite a setback for Rodgers because these boys were strongly considered for starting berths. Coach Rodgers is going to have to pull one out of the hat to beat Boise.

A scouting report revealed that the Broncos, with one of the tallest teams, has a very effective offense which makes it hard for any opposition to score many points.

EVEN THOUGH some of the big boys are having their problems with the registrar, there are still some good ones left who meet the eligibility requirements.

Len Wilber an All-Stater from Goldendale may very well find a spot in the first five and stuff a few points in while he is at it. Len was All-Conference and All-State his last two years at Goldendale.

Another big boy whom Rodgers will depend upon throughout the season is 6' 7" Bob Antulov. Bob is a transfer from St. Francis College in Pennsylvania and attended Far Rockaway High School in New York City. While at St. Francis he averaged 17 points a game and 14 rebounds.

How is that for credentials? Oh, another thing, he also made All City in the town of New York City. In case Bob can't carry the load there is specialist-hook-shooter Lavern Jeter, the only returning letterman for Coach Rodgers.

AROUND THE CONFERENCE . . . The Olympic Rangers led by hot-shooting center Terry Easter handed University of British Columbia Thunderbird's junior varsity a 99-73 decision on the first outing of the season for both teams. The Rangers sporting a very effective fast-breaking offense will be the team to beat this year . . . Grays Harbor College was able to breeze by Clatsop College from Astoria, Oregon with a 114 to 54 decision. Astoria making its athletic debut was completely outclassed by the much taller and experienced Harborites . . . Coach Paul Blowers head basketball mentor at Everett Junior College said: "I thought we played real well" after the Trojans completely outclassed the Victoria College Vikings in an 84-33 decision . . . Our friends in the Banana Belt region, namely the Yakima Valley Indians, are going to have to improve if they expect to stay in contention and give the Columbia Basin Hawks a little opposition. The Indians lost their two curtain-raisers of the season to Idaho Frosh and Washington State Couababes . . . In one of the season openers Lewis and Clark Normal edged the Wenatchee Valley College Knights 53-50. Mataya, head coach for the Knights, was called for two technical fouls during the game . . . The team the Hawks are more interested in this week had a fair weekend last week. The Boise Junior College Broncos split a doubleheader, with the University of Idaho Frosh losing the first night 57-56 and coming back the next night with a convincing score of 59-48 . . . With the addition of Highline to the Northern Division, making a total of six teams, 15 league games will be played instead of the usual 13 . . . So, the way it looks at this point of the game, it will be pretty much Olympic with Clark giving most of the opposition. With five teams playing in the Southern Division, Everett and Skagit will be the teams to keep your eyes on.

BEST OF LUCK to the number one team in the Nation, the Columbia Basin Hawks, in the Rose Bowl. We hope that Ray Johnson will overcome his eye difficulty by the 15th. Ray is one of the best guards in the State and is considered for high honors.

Ski Club Travels To White Pass

By Joanne Mace

EIGHTEEN members of the Ski Club officially opened their season last weekend with a trip to White Pass.

Three carloads of CBC skiers left Pasco at about 7 a.m. Saturday and two and one-half hours later were unloading at the ski area.

George Palous, elementary teacher, who during his college years raced for the University of Idaho, is the ski team coach this season.

During the two-day trip, Mr. Palous worked with eight members of the team, who reported that a good deal of time was spent practicing weight shift from one ski to the other in turns and the "reverse shoulder" method of skiing.

Fine weather and a fine time was said to have prevailed the entire weekend.

Some of the skiers, under the advisement of Miss Virginia Brouns, CBC nursing instructor, spent both Saturday and Sunday at White Pass, while others returned home Saturday evening.

Beginning class lessons will be given by Miss Brouns, free of charge, to CBC students interested in joining Ski Club and going on the trips.

Talons To Give Rose Boutonnieres To CBC Hawks

WHEN THE team and their coaches leave for Pasadena bright and early Tuesday morning they will have with them a reminder that everyone is cheering them on to victory.

Talons, the service club of CBC, is providing each team member and coach going to the Junior Rose Bowl game with a rosebud boutonniere. Go beat 'em, Hawks.

Basketball Season Getting Underway This Week

CBC HAWKS open their 1962 - 1963 basketball season this Friday and Saturday, December 7 and 8 with Boise Junior College here at the Pasco Senior High gym. Friday's game is at 9:30 p.m. and Saturday's is at 8:00 p.m.

Coach Rodgers is expecting these two games with Boise to be "tough." Boise has the edge on the Hawks in that they have already played two of their games, both with the University of Idaho Frosh — with whom they split one apiece.

CBC's Coach Rodgers said that we will have to work hard, especially on rebounding, although defense is looking good.

Boise not only has an edge on their tough ball game with Goodwin, a 5' 11" forward, but also sank 23 points in the first half of the game. In Coach Rodgers' opinion, the Hawks are not yet been

Rodgers Looks Forward to 3rd Successful Season

COACH JIM RODGERS

Enters Third Season with Hawks

By Jeff Howard

THAT football season was a close, basketball season was a head-scrambling scene—the scene—Coach Jim Rodgers will be the head of the basketball team at CBC. He is developing the team, but they have that have not have a tremendous amount of height and I'm not about our ability to bail off the back was concerned about ability to play a good defense. However, I am sure they will improve by continuing the hard practices as we enter this new season."

Coming to CBC coach Rodgers was an assistant coach at UW, under coach [unclear] basketball coach [unclear] school days.

was born in Gasquet, Oregon in 1934. He attended Central High School in Portland, Mo. where he was in three major sports and won an all-state basketball selection.

was a freshman at the University of Oklahoma where he was a former high school basketball coach. When he moved to Idaho State he was an assistant coach and at the Pocatello college career.

was an outstanding basketball player under Gray. He was named All-State College. As a senior, three years ago he was named All-Conference team player in 1958.

was an All-American basketball player and a place on the the Helms Foundation All-American team; honorable mention on the Associated Press mythical team; and a spot on the Far Western NCAA regional five.

He received his bachelor of science degree in Economics from Idaho State and currently is working on a master's degree in Physical Education at Idaho State.

RODGERS and his wife, Bonnie, were school mates at Idaho State. They have a two year old son, Scott.

In two years at CBC Rodgers has led the team to a remarkable record of 47 wins and seven losses. Both years they won the WSJCAA and in two years they haven't lost a game to a Northern Division opponent.

Rodgers based his success and philosophy of basketball on three main things:

"1. Desire. 2. Physical conditioning. 3. Team work.

"You cannot have a basketball team without these three points. We feel that if young men learn these three things well then that learning will carry over into their daily living and we hope enable them to be better students and citizens.

"If they continue to hustle and stay in shape and learn team work in their occupation after college, then our society is strengthened to the degree they carry out these objectives.

"If they show these qualities on the basketball floor and in the classroom, they will mature as more responsible citizens."

Jim also teaches Health and Physical Education, and is the head golf coach.

S. A. C. Happenings

DURING THE Student Activity Council meeting Tuesday morning Vice President Jim Graham asked whether or not the Homecoming Dance chaperons had been paid for babysitters. Mr. Hansen said he would look into the matter and make sure that it was done.

Harold James and Jerry Baker reported they had gathered information about the next lecture presenting Dr. Eleanor Dulles. This information is being given to Rusty Kenney so that she can make the posters and put them up after Christmas vacation.

Tonight there is going to be a film entitled "Washington State — Land of Contrasts" shown in the gymnasium at 7:45 p.m.

Council members discussed whether or not it would be worthwhile to hold a dance December 15 since some students are going to Pasadena and others will be going home for the holidays.

However, the general opinion of the Council was that enough students would be here to make the dance a success.

MR. HANSEN then told the council that there were still seats available on the plane to Pasadena. The bus will leave Pasco for Pendleton about 1 a.m. Saturday, December 15. The plane to Pasadena will leave Pendleton about 3 a.m. and breakfast will be served on the plane. Transportation to and from the stadium in Pasadena will be furnished. The plane will land in Pendleton about 3 a.m. Sunday morning. Dinner will be served on the plane.

Only cost to the students will be the $75 for a round-trip plane ticket and the meal or meals they eat in California. The school is paying for the tickets to the game.

Mr. Hansen said that of students want to get two or three cars together and drive down to California, a faculty member has volunteered to go along as a chaperon.

President Sharon Hartley also stated that if enough students sign up there will be a chartered bus to Pasadena. The information is on the bulletin board along with the list of students who have signed up.

Debaters Travel To California

THREE STUDENTS represented CBC at a national debate tournament recently held at San Fernando State College, California.

Those attending were Gary Starkey, Bucky Plumb, and Ron Bracy. They were accompanied by debate coach Mr. Donald Bogenberger.

SNEA Hears Guest Speaker

AT THE regular Thursday evening meeting of the Student National Education Association, Mrs. Bonnie Harder was guest speaker. Rather than presenting a formal speech Mrs. Harder conducted more of an informal discussion group. The main idea stressed was the completely integrated teacher.

Tuesday morning at 10 a.m. the SNEA held a special meeting to discuss the educational display which they had ordered. This display has been up since Tuesday and will remain until Friday evening.

This display contains many pamphlets and books on various phases of education. There is information on federal aid to education — how to teach spelling and math, and exceptional children.

The display is sent to the school by the National Education Association. There are many free pamphlets and booklets available for interested students.

New Speech Instructor Pleased With Teaching

MR. FRED DIXON
... New Speech Instructor

BY JEANNE MACE

"I'VE ALWAYS thought that teaching would be very rewarding, especially on the college level and have now found that it lives up to my expectations," says Mr. Dixon, a new member of the CBC teaching staff.

"I especially enjoy teaching speech because it creates an informal atmosphere and enables the instructor to become emotionally close to his students and gain a better understanding of them," he added.

In looking back over the highlights of his school years, he recalls:

"During my senior year at Brigham Young High School, I was student body president and also won the state high school tennis championship."

"After high school graduation, I attended West Virginia University my freshman year of college and then transferred to Brigham Young University my sophomore year."

Between Mr. Dixon's junior and senior years, he spent a little over two years in France on a mission for his church, The Church of the Latter Day Saints.

"I had taken French in school and could read and write the language, which helped immensely in learning to speak it correctly," he said.

Before returning home, Mr. Dixon toured Europe extensively and remarks:

"It was a marvelous experience, in that I was really able to capture the atmosphere and nature of the people."

"Upon my return from Europe, there was a letter awaiting me from Uncle Sam which began, 'Greetings' . . . I was then able to go only one quarter of my senior year at BYU prior to enlistment."

AFTER SPENDING two years with the U. S. Army,

Texas Goes 'Buggy'

(ACP)—A BEETLE named Jorge goes to class on the left shoulder of Gwen Mapes, a blonde coed at North Texas State University, Denton.

The university newspaper, "Campus Chat," says Gwen discovered Jorge, a jeweled case glued to his back, in a store in Mexico. Purchase price was $2.

The case has a small chain with a safety pin at the end for affixing on her shoulder, where Jorge romps during the day. "At night he stays in a cardboard box in my room," she explained. "He eats balsam wood in small quantities."

when he directed the play "Dingdong Bell" for the Theater Guild, and for six months worked for Tammy Grimes when she was appearing in the Broadway play, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown."

During this time, he was working on his thesis for a Master's degree and was able to interview many professional people. After receiving his Master's degree in drama at BYU, Mr. Dixon's next move was to CBC.

Mr. Dixon says his main interests center in "sports, drama, and music. My father prompted my interest in sports—he is a coach at BYU."

ABOUT HIS future plans, Mr. Dixon remarks:

"At the moment my plans are a bit indefinite. If I continue to teach, I hope eventually to go on and get my doctorate."

When asked for a word of advice to the students of CBC, Mr. Dixon replied:

"As soon as you possibly can, choose a major — check into the background of the major and your particular interests in the field and begin channeling your interests so that you will have more than the last two years of college in which to concentrate upon your chosen major."

Colorado State Profs Fight Over Pumpkins

(ACP)—TEMPERS are flaring between English and botany professors over the vegetable raid which resulted in destruction of experimental projects and master's degree experiments at the Colorado State University botany and plant pathology farm.

The Fort Collins, Colorado, university's newspaper, "Collegian," quoted an employee of the firm as saying the English teachers even raided his pumpkins.

"There was quite a bunch of them," he said. "They brought their wives and kids."

One English faculty member explained:

"The whole thing was a misunderstanding. Some of us heard a rumor that the vegetables at this farm were to be plowed under. Now I ask you, what would you have done? We went over there and got some fresh vegetables."

The English spokesman said no attempt had been made to verify the rumor.
